IWMA to hold next Webinar Series in January 2021

Hamburg, 11th December 2020. The International Water Mist Association (IWMA) announced today that a second series of webinars on fire protection with water mist will take place early in the new year. The three events will take place on 14th, 21st and 28th January 2021, each one at 10.00 a.m. Registration is free of charge.

The event on 14th January will deal with “water mist for hospitals and the healthcare sector”. The topic on 21st will be “water mist for public transport” and attendees will learn all about “water mist for high-rise buildings” on 28th January.

The programme will be published on 7th January. That will also be the day when registration via the IWMA homepage will start.

IWMA general manager Bettina McDowell says: “The IWMA webinars will from now on be a part of the IWMA activities. The next series will take place in April. There will be regular updates for the January as well as for the April series on the IWMA webpage www.iwma.net.”
