IWMC 2023: The Call for Papers has been released

Hamburg, 1st February 2023. The 22nd International Water Mist Conference will – for the second time – take place in Copenhagen, Denmark, on 11th and 12th October 2023. Organizer is – as always – the International Water Mist Association (IWMA). The conference venue is the Copenhagen Marriott Hotel.

The call for papers was published on 1st February and will run until 15th May which is also the day on which the conference webpage will go live. Unlike in other years, the conference webpage will be inserted into the IWMA webpage. Access will be organized via a big red square on page one.

An exhibition will run alongside the conference providing the sponsors with the opportunity to network with the delegates, showcase their products and generate new sales leads. The booking forms are available on the IWMA webpage www.iwma.net as is the call for papers.

“Day one of the event will mainly focus on applications, whereas day two will take a more scientific approach to the water mist technology”, says IWMA general manager Bettina McDowell.

The conference programme will be published on 1st August. The early bird period will end on 15th August.
