IWMA Young Talent Award to be presented at IWMC 2016

Hamburg, 23rd February 2016. The International Water Mist Association (IWMA) will from 2016 present an award to promote young scientists. The award will be called “The IWMA Young Talent of the Year Award” and will be handed over once a year at the annual IWMA conference.

Students who have dedicated their master thesis to the water mist technology may in 2016 hand in an abstract or summary before 30th April. This will then be examined by the IWMA scientific council. The winner will be invited to the 16th International Water Mist Conference – which will take place in Vienna on 21st and 22nd September – and will be given a slot to present his or her findings.

The master thesis must carry the current year’s or the previous year’s date. A detailed list with the rules and regulations of this award is available on www.iwma.net.
